ALL COMPANY COMMANDERS.

Subject :- Renovation of Slouch Hats.

Owing to the war and the difficulty in obtaining supplies from England, it is incumbent <sup>on</sup> in all personnel to take the greatest possible care of their Kit especially Slouch Hats.

2. There is a firm in Tel Aviv who are experts in the cleaning and renovating of these hats. For the sum of 70 mils, the firm thoroughly clean and re - block the hats and make them like new. If a new blue mark is required in the front of the hat, a further 5 mils is charged.

3. I shall be grateful therefore, if you will arrange for the hats of personnel of your Company that require renovating to have them sent to Tel - Aviv for this purpose. You could send them with a responsible man by the Egged 'Bus Coy. Hats should be clearly marked inside with the Owners name, Number and Company.

4. The name and address of the firm is as follows :-

B E W A Hat Factory
41 Ha'aliya Street
Tel - Aviv.

5. The Inspector General directs that you do all you possibly can to improve the appearance and turn - out of your men, so I would like you to take a personal interest in this matter.

The management of British police messing.

This publication is supplementary to and is intended to be read in conjunction with Amending Slip No. 97, dated 27th July, 1940. Besides serving as a guide to Officers and N.C.Os. charged with the conduct of British police messes it is intended to assist mess committees in the preparation of weekly diet sheets and mess caterers in ordering supplies of required commodities.

Part I. - Routine.

The following will serve as an indication of some of the more important points to be observed when inspecting messing arrangements :-

1. Ascertain whether :-

- a) The purchases made on any day on account of supplementary rations or on account of extra messing are actually required to provide the diet to be served.
- b) There are large debit or credit balances in the daily messing account which indicate that the men are not systematically catered for from day to day.
- c) A quantity of scrap bread is usually collected after meals. If the quantity is large it will probably be found that flour is not being taken in lieu of bread in sufficient quantity; that the slices of bread placed on the tables at meals are larger than the men can eat, or that the bread is cut up some time before it is required and gets stale.
- d) An inspection of the refuse bins reveals any excessive waste, necessitating investigation and action.
- e) The daily diet includes fish or bacon or other dish for breakfast; meat, two vegetables and pudding or sweet for dinner; bread, meat or fish, and cheese for lunch.

maintain good health unless he lives on a mixed dietary. In dry seasons green and root vegetables are scarce, which necessitates the inclusion of dried peas and beans somewhat frequently in the dietary shown. Fresh vegetables should, however, be served where obtainable.

Gravy. A well-cooked dinner is too frequently made unappetising by the provision of a badly made gravy. Plain bone stock poured into a baking dish is insipid. Gravy should be made by braizing (shallow frying) root vegetables, such as onions, carrots, turnips, etc., placed in the stock and allowed to simmer slowly during the morning or afternoon as the case may be. Clear away the scum, add flour thickening and allow to simmer for 30 minutes in order to cook the flour so that no trace of the taste of flour remains.

Bread ration. The distribution of the bread ration will depend upon the duties men are called upon to perform. Careful administration will enable messes to draw flour in lieu of a portion of the bread ration and save purchasing. When cutting up bread it has been found that, where large numbers are in mess, the following quantities have been found sufficient:-

|---------------------|-------|
| Breakfast . . . . . | 5 oz. |
| Lunch . . . . .     | 5 oz. |
| Dinner . . . . .    | 2 oz. |

where the breakfast and lunch meals are augmented and the dinner meal is associated with a well-made gravy, much more bread is consumed.

Bread is issued to be eaten as bread, and only pieces of unsoiled bread which are left over from a meal should be used for cooking purposes. Bread should be cut in half or quarter slices for each meal. When bread is not available for making bread puddings as shown in the diet sheet P.13 boiled rice with golden syrup or jam should be served.

The management of British police messing.

This publication is supplementary to and is intended to be read in conjunction with Amending Slip No. 97, dated 27th July, 1940. Besides serving as a guide to Officers and N.C.Os. charged with the conduct of British police messes it is intended to assist mess committees in the preparation of weekly diet sheets and mess caterers in ordering supplies of required commodities.

Part I - Routine.

The following will serve as an indication of some of the more important points to be observed when inspecting messing arrangements :-

1. Ascertain whether :-
  - a) The purchases made on any day on account of supplementary rations or on account of extra messing are actually required to provide the diet to be served.
  - b) There are large debit or credit balances in the daily messing account which indicate that the men are not systematically catered for from day to day.

If the quantity is large it will probably be found that flour is not being taken in lieu of bread in sufficient quantity; that the slices of bread placed on the tables at meals are larger than the men can eat, or that the bread is cut up some time before it is required and gets stale.
  - d) An inspection of the refuse bins reveals any excessive waste, necessitating investigation and action.
  - e) The daily diet includes fish or bacon or other dish for breakfast; meat, two vegetables and pudding or sweet for dinner; bread, meat or fish, and cheese for lunch.

- f) The goods purchased are up to standard quality.
- g) The cooks are clean and properly turned out and that smoking does not take place in the kitchen or the preparation room.
- h) A stock - pot is in use for the purpose of providing stock for gravies, stews, meat pies and meat puddings.
- i) Unnecessary accumulation of stock of foodstuffs of any kind is avoided.
- j) The walls of the kitchen are swept once a week in the early morning before they become damp from steam.
- k) All flues are well-cleaned, the ovens and hot-plates are scraped and the soot which collects on the outside of all boilers is brushed away.
- l) The cooking equipment is up to schedule, in good repair, and sufficient to cook a variety of meals for the men in mess.
- m) The daily expenditure account book is properly kept.
- n) A meeting of the messing committee is held at least once in each week, and the proceedings, together with the diet sheet for the ensuing week, placed before the officer i/c. for approval.
- o) The instructions contained in this pamphlet are adhered to.

2. Messes of about 25 to 30 men are considered to be best suited to good cooking, to facilitate a quick service of food at the kitchen, and efficient distribution of food to the men at the meal tables.

3. The following detailed arrangements will be applied :-

- a) A mess caterer will be placed in charge of each mess.
- b) He is responsible that the room where the men dine is in order, and the tables laid for breakfast, lunch and dinner, and for tea, where served.

- c) That receptacles are placed on the tables containing necessary condiments, and that other utensils are available for general use by the men dining. That water is placed on the dinner tables with mugs or glasses for the men to use.
- d) That men get a satisfactory meal and that preventable waste is avoided.

Note. If the mess is well conducted the demands of all the members can be met. The equal portion system must not be unduly enforced. Some may require more than others, and it may be possible by careful arrangement to satisfy all. In a well-conducted mess there should be no edible food left on the plates after meals. The helpings should be on a moderate scale at first and the men allowed to ask for more.

When a man has a complaint to make about the quality or the insufficiency of his meal, or any part of it, he should do so in the first instance to the mess caterer, who will, if the complaint cannot be at once remedied, bring it to the notice of the N.C.O. or the officer whose duty it is to receive it.

4. Butchers and meat stores. Frozen meat will be hung and allowed to defrost by the action of the air, when moisture will rapidly condense on the surface of the carcase, producing a clammy and sticky feeling. It may, in exceptional circumstances, be necessary during frosty weather to defrost by artificial means in order to extract the ice deposit, but the jointing of the meat the day before issue is made, which renders the thawing process more easy of accomplishment than would be the case with a complete quarter of beef or carcase of mutton, should, under ordinary conditions, be forbidden.

The chief points to be borne in mind are that meat should never be cooked with ice deposits in it, and that it should only be defrosted by being placed in a warmer temperature when the natural action of the air is too cold to defrost it.

A simple method of ascertaining whether meat is properly thawed is to insert a fork into it; if the fork runs easily to the bone the meat is thawed, but if any stickiness is encountered then the thawing process is incomplete.

The cooks, should, as far as possible, avoid jointing the meat until it has been sufficiently thawed, as meat, when jointed and cut across the grain, loses valuable nutriment, which drips away with the fluid thrown off. For example, a quarter of beef hung in a temperature of about 60° Fahr, will easily get rid of the ice deposits. The outer parts of the carcass should be repeatedly wiped with a cloth wrung through tepid water. When the weather is very frosty, however, the usual means of defrosting will not suffice, and the most suitable artificial means available should be employed, e.g. steaming.

Neither whole quarters of beef, carcasses of mutton, nor meat already cut up should be packed close together; if this is done it will cause overheating and in course of time render the meat unfit for consumption. For similar reasons, meat for stews, if cut up the day before it is required for use, should not be placed in deep panes and left there till the following day.

The mess caterer is responsible for his meat being kept in a place that is clean and free from flies. All openings should be covered with fly-proof wire gauze. The presence of the blow-fly will cause deterioration of ration meat and should be got rid of. The blow-fly maggot quickly matures, and the fully-grown fly will travel a considerable distance to gain an entrance to any place where meat is stored.

Bread stores. Bread stores must be kept dry and well ventilated. When received, the bread should be placed, without delay on racks or shelves in such a manner that the fresh air may circulate freely and so allow moisture to escape. The loaves should not be more than three or four tiers high so as to avoid crushing the bottom layers, which will cause moisture etc., to consolidate in the middle of the loaves, give bread an unwholesome taste and render it indigestible. Issues will be made as found necessary. The N.C.O. should make certain that issues are correctly recorded. Bread longest in store should be issued first. Shelves or racks should be frequently scrubbed clean, and at such an hour as will give time for them to dry before fresh supplies are delivered. Flour should be stored in covered tins and be completely used up before fresh supplies are put in the tins.

Vegetables – how stored. A store where vegetables are kept should have a cool, dry atmosphere, and if the vegetables are wet when delivered they should be separated to prevent heating.

Potatoes and other root crops in sacks are sometimes brought through a heavy downpour of rain. When delivered in this state and left in sacks in a warm room, they will, under certain conditions, sprout, turn soft, or rot.

Greenstuffs, if left in sacks or any other package, or placed in a heap in a warm room, will quickly deteriorate and soon become unfit for use as food.

Peas, beans, lentils, dried fruits and salads should be kept in a dry atmosphere until required for use.

Preparation rooms. If possible a preparation room should be made available and it should be kept well ventilated and used only for the preparation of food, and no accumulation of commodities, except as required for the actual preparation of meals for the day, should be stored there. A separate room for this purpose has the following advantages :-

- a) The room is cooler, and cooks work more freely than in the kitchen. The dry atmosphere of a well-ventilated room is of great value to the material in use in the preparation of meals, especially during the hand-mixing of flour, when oxygen and other constituents of the air are admitted to the mixture instead of the foul air, smoke and dust usually present in kitchens.

- b) Certain dishes which are to be cooked and served on the following day can be prepared beforehand, whereas in a kitchen this is often impracticable.
- c) Sausage machines, mincers and bread-cutters can be permanently fixed and kept clean.
- d) The fly pest can be more easily kept down than in a kitchen where they are encouraged by the warmth in the building in addition to the attraction of sweets, syrups, and other food. Preparation rooms are more easily rendered fly-proof than cookhouses. (See pages 20-21)

Washing-up rooms and areas. Washing up rooms should be provided and they must not be used for storage of cooking utensils. Sinks or troughs fixed in these rooms for washing-up, should, after use, be left free from grease, pipes and gullies free from obstructions, and the floors clean.

5. Dietary It is first necessary to provide a satisfactory diet for men. No fixed rule can be laid down and it is only by constant observation and careful study of the subject that an officer can ever hope to cater successfully for the men, whose tastes should be met as far as is consistent with sensible and and sound feeding.

In addition to good cooking, which is in every way essential, the attractiveness of the food, when served, is of the utmost importance if waste is to be avoided. Good catering and proper service of food is the keystone of good order and discipline in the Force. Well arranged and varied feeding is a very essential part of the strenuous life, and a study of the subject should take its proper place alongside other details which go to make men physically fit. To ensure a full measure of success demands a knowledge of :-

Meat ration. When carefully conserved and properly cooked the meat ration will be sufficient to provide more than two breakfast or lunch meals in one week in addition to the dinner meals. When this is not done there is likely to be waste at the dinner meal and sufficient credit will not be available to purchase substantial lunch meals as purchases will have to be made for the breakfast meals which, with more careful management, could be provided from the meat ration. After providing for all meals, 15 lbs of meat for each 100 men should be on hand, which may be used as found to be necessary.

Bacon ration. No food requires more careful treatment than the bacon ration. When cooking, the tendency should be to warm through the rashers instead of applying extreme heat and thereby extracting a large quantity of fat. Where this cannot be avoided, slices of stale bread should be lightly fried in the fat and served with the bacon. A bacon breakfast is an Englishman's dish and is intended to provide a high standard of energy. Its chief value lies in the fat which should be eaten. Boiled bacon may be substituted for fried bacon if the bacon ration consists of hams or hocks.

Scale of foodstuffs and ingredients required for 100 men.

10. The following scales refer to a daily meat ration of 12 oz. each man :—

* Add 2 lbs. sultanas if sufficient credit is available to purchase them.

NOTE.— Two packets of baking powder or 2 oz. of carbonate of soda and 1 oz. of cream of tartar may be added to the ingredients mentioned at 1 to 6 inclusive. When suet is used in place of dripping, one-third increase in weight should be used.

USE OF DRIED BREAD AND BISCUIT CRUMBS.

In addition to making bread puddings, a good way of dealing with scrap bread and biscuits is shown in the following recipes. If the bread is dried on a hot plate or in an oven before being crumbed, it will keep wholesome indefinitely. Biscuits may be crushed and used in the proportions stated in the note at the end of this para.

INGREDIENTS FOR 100 MEN.

|------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Fig pudding ... ..     | Bread crumbs, 18 lbs.; figs 6 lbs.; flour, 5 lbs.; sugar 3 lbs.; dripping, 2 lbs.; a teaspoonful of spice and a little salt. |
| Golden pudding ... ..  | Bread crumbs, 18 lbs.; flour, 5 lbs.; sugar, 2 lbs.; marmalade, 8 lbs.; dripping, 2 lbs.; a little salt.                     |
| Treacle pudding ... .. | Bread crumbs, 18 lbs.; flour, 5 lbs.; sugar, 2 lbs.; dripping, 2 lbs.; treacle 8 lbs.; a little salt.                        |
| Prune pudding ... ..   | Bread crumbs, 18 lbs.; flour, 5 lbs.; sugar, 3 lbs.; dripping, 2 lbs.; prunes, 8 lbs.; a little salt.                        |
| Date pudding ... ..    | Bread crumbs, 18 lbs.; flour, 5 lbs.; sugar, 3 lbs.; dripping, 2 lbs.; dates, 8 lbs.; a little salt and a little nutmeg.     |

NOTE.— More bread crumbs are sometimes used without increasing the other ingredients.

METHOD.

11. The bread should be dried throughout [in an oven or on a hot-plate] , and crushed to crumbs. This can be done in a mincing machine, or placed in a clean sack, crushed with a mallet, and put through a sieve.

Golden pudding. - Place flour, bread crumbs, sugar, dripping and salt in a mixing bowl, and mix well. Stand the tins of marmalade in hot water to thin out, and when ready add the other ingredients and mix well. Add sufficient water or milk to make into a soft mixture. Fill the basins or tins (which have been already greased) with the mixture, and fasten cloth down. Time to steam or boil, three hours.

Fig, date and prune puddings. - Soak and cut up figs, dates or prunes into small pieces, and put all ingredients into a mixing bowl, and mix well. Add milk or water to make mixture, soft. Fill well-greased tins with the mixture, and fasten cloth down. Time to steam or to boil, three hours. It is unnecessary to soak dates.

Treacle pudding. - Place bread crumbs, sugar, flour, dripping and salt into a mixing bowl, and mix well. Add sufficient milk or water to make a soft mixture. Fill well-greased tins or basins, cover and tie down. Cook for  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to 3 hours. Half-an-hour before the puddings are to be served, stand the tins of treacle in hot water, and when ready pour over the puddings.

Note. - If basins or tins are not available and the puddings are tied in cloths and boiled, the quantity of bread crumbs and flour used should be equal. Biscuit crumbs can be used in the proportion of one-third to two-thirds bread crumbs or flour.

12. In addition to the foregoing quantities of foodstuffs required for meals referred to in the preceding pages, the following detail of quantities for 100 men will be found useful for reference when calculating supplies and purchasing commodities for messing:-

BY-PRODUCTS OF THE MEAT RATION.

13. The main consideration governing the recovery of by products from the meat ration must be that the man should have from his meat ration all that he requires or wants

The most important by product is, of course, dripping, which is the oil extracted from the fat of all kinds of meat during the process of cooking

Dripping forms a valuable aid to cooking and should provide all the fat required for :-

1. Preparation of all pastry.
2. Puddings.
3. Issues in lieu of margarine for breakfast and tea.
4. Frying purposes.

The dripping obtainable from meat [beef] should not be less than one ounce per pound of meat issued. With careful conservation it has reached one and a half ounces on the average covering a period of several days

All dripping should be removed from the kitchen and weighed into store. The receptacles should be carefully ticketed showing the quality and the purpose for which the dripping is intended. A chart is attached showing the source and method of treatment and disposal of products which should be recovered in the treatment of the meat ration. Under Section(A) of the chart it should be noticed that where meat is issued in sides or quarters, it follows that in the process of cutting up the meat considerable quantities of fat will be left over. This fat is known as "butcher's fat", so called because the ordinary butcher disposes to the trade of this surplus which arises in the reduction of meat bought wholesale to the joints and stewing meat which are sold to the general public.

The liquid fat which accumulates on the surface of stocks, stews, bakes, pies etc., and that which settles on the bottom of the dishes when roasting, must be removed before the dishes leave the kitchen, not only to provide dripping, but to render the food appetising, palatable and easily digested. Dripping is clarified in the following manner :-

The liquid fat, when skimmed off the dishes, is put into a dish to cool and harden into a solid cake. It is then broken up into pieces, put into a dish with about one quart of water, placed in an oven or on a hot-plate and allowed to boil rapidly, all scum being removed as it rises to the surface. When the water has evaporated and the fat becomes clear, strain it into a clean dish and allow to cool; when firm turn it out in a solid block and carefully scrape away any particles of dirt or impurity that may be adhering to the bottom.

Chart showing recovery and utilisation of by-products.

PREVENTION AND SUPPRESSION OF FLIES.

Prevention. Absolute cleanliness is essential in all stores and kitchens and the frequent scrubbing of out-of-the-way places, such as shelves, borders, tops and backs of cupboards.

The ground in the vicinity of kitchens and washing-up areas should not be allowed to get into a state of pollution.

Food stores should be well ventilated and kept as dark as possible, and wire gauze covering for all food cupboards should be provided.

Tins of condensed milk, jam, syrup, sugar, etc., are not to be left about open as they are specially attractive to flies. Empty tins and jars should be washed clean before being put aside for removal.

Refuse tubs with fly-proof covers should invariably be placed on a concrete floor or brick pavement which can be easily washed clean and treated with cresol solution.

Suppression. Flies must be kept off food.

Formula for Fly-killing solution.

Formalin (formaldehyde 40 per cent), 2 tablespoonfuls,

Sugar, say, 1 dessertspoonful.

Filtered lime-water,  $\frac{1}{2}$  pint.

Water, add to make up 1 pint.

It is noted that the effect of this solution will not be so apparent if the atmosphere is very humid. It is also desirable that, so far as possible, the flies should not be afforded opportunity of obtaining access to water in the vicinity of the formalin solution.

Method of Use. Pieces of absorbent paper (thick blotting paper) in an ordinary soup plate may be wetted with the formalin solution. As evaporation takes place more solution must be added from time to time.

- b) An efficient trap can be made by filling a small glass pot about half full of solution, and inverting it on to a flat-bottomed glass dish or a soup plate holding three superimposed layers of filter paper.
- c) The pot can be kept in position by passing a thick elastic band around both pot and plate. The fluid gradually escapes by capillary action, thus keeping the filter paper sufficiently moist.

There are also other ways of destroying flies, for example:-

- a) Mix one part cresol and 19 parts water and spray the ground which is suspected as breeding places.
- b) Traps, wire or string, smeared with a mixture of resin and castor oil should be hung about stores. Specially prepared fly-traps should be on sale in all canteens.
- c) Where the fly-pest cannot be kept down within a particular kitchen or store, search should be made for the breeding places outside, probably on dung or refuse heaps. The former is their natural breeding place and should be burnt out or sprayed with cresol solution as explained above.

Attention is directed to the pamphlet issued by, and obtainable from, the Department of Public Health, dealing with the fly nuisance.

JEWISH SETTLEMENT DEFENCE OFFICE
POLICE HEADQUARTERS
TIBERIAS, 1st August, 1940.

INSPECTOR GENERAL.

Subject :- Indents for rifles.

I have received 2 rifles No.1, Mk.III with 200 rounds of ammunition from Quartermaster (Issue Voucher No.2/213 dated 31.7.40 refers). These rifles were indented for under my indent No.32/40 dated 9.5.40 to replace rifles lost at Ein Harod and Macz. (See My Court of Inquiry No.12/J.S.D/G dated 21. 8. 39). In your letter No. P.23/462 dated 20.5.40 you instructed that the indent be cancelled.

2. In view of the instructions contained in your letter may these rifles be returned to stores.

and my P.7/256 dated 10-8-39.

I am to ask you to cancel the indents for the three rifles covering the Ein Herod, Maoz and Tiberias Courts of Inquiry since, in your return dated 30th April, 1940, you report that your rifle strength is up to the authorised

On my recent inspection of your Company, I noticed several N.C.O's and men wearing very badly faded distinguishing patches on their slouch hats and shirts.
This denotes slackness.

2. You will arrange for these faded

QUARTERMASTER
M.T.DEPOT.

Subject :- Transport - movement of stores.

In future the following principles in movement of stores involving transport will be observed:-

1. Stores will not be brought into or fetched from Divisional, District or Force Headquarters stores for exchange.

The new stores will be despatched by the Headquarters store and the old part for exchange will be brought back. In this way one truck may be made to perform a number duties at once.

2. Railway transport will be used on every possible occasion. When road transport is used when rail transport is available the officer detailing the transport will be held financially responsible that the occasion demanded it and that the urgency was such that rail transport could not be used.

3. A pool of trucks is being formed at Jerusalem, Jaffa and Haifa to be controlled by this Headquarters (F.T.O.) and will comprise approximately 8 to 10 trucks in each place. These trucks will not be absorbed into the district organisation but will be in reserve for duties involving special movement of stores, personnel etc.

Subject : - Dress - Officers &amp; Inspectors.

It has been decided that all officers and inspectors of the Force, both British and Palestinian, shall in future, wear khaki shirts and collars, when wearing the regulation khaki jacket.

2. A sufficient number of 'Van Heusen' shirts and collars have now been received from England, and are available for issue on payment.

3. The sizes are as shown below:-

| Shirts.                                                                                                                                | Cost per article. |

Subject : - Stores Accounting.

I am directed to inform you that several cases of irregular store transactions, between subordinate stores accounting formations, have been recently observed. Stores may not be transferred, except in cases of emergency, from one accounting formation to another without the prior authority of the Inspector-General.

2. The correct procedure to be followed in cases of this nature is set out below:-

Emergency Cases. The formation handing over the stores will notify Headquarters, as soon as practicable after the transaction has been made, and in due course voucher the stores to the Quartermaster, who will then revoucher them to the new formation.

Normal Cases. The formation holding the stores will submit particulars thereof to Headquarters, stating the reasons which necessitate the transfer. Upon receipt of authority to transfer, this formation will voucher the stores to the Quartermaster who in turn will voucher them to the new formation.

Subject :- Tunic Shirts.

Reference:- Minutes of the Superintendent's Quarterly Conference of the 30th of April 1940.

I am directed to forward herewith a photograph showing the design of the scaled pattern tunic shirt. Sufficient photographs are also attached to permit the transmission of copies to officers in charge of divisions and Jewish settlement police formations.

2. The wearing of the tunic shirt by officers and inspectors is optional, but you will ensure that these garments worn by officers and inspectors under your command conform to the scaled pattern.

3. You shall also ensure that :-

- (a) Regulation jackets "cut down" or adopted to represent a tunic shirt will not be worn.
- (b) Officers and inspectors, when in uniform will not appear in public wearing a shirt as an alternative to either the regulation pattern jacket or the tunic shirt.
- (c) The khaki drill required for tunic shirts must be obtained from Headquarters stores.

4. The quantity of khaki drill required to make a tunic shirt is four yards, and issues to officers and inspectors will be effected on prepayment only. Owing to the fluctuation of the prices of khaki drill it is impracticable to quote a firm figure, but the approximate cost of four yards is 300 mls.

Subject :- Jerseys - Care of.

Now that summer clothing has been taken into use special care must be taken of the jerseys until they are required again next winter.

2. The jerseys should be carefully cleaned and if necessary repaired before being packed away. As all the jerseys have been used they are liable to be damaged by moths and other insects and should be packed away in naphthalene to prevent this.

Subject:- Deficiency of Two Whistles and Two First Aid Sets.

Sgt. Pressman in his visit to the K.Hahorash Mobile Guard station on 3.11.39, found that there were missing from the stores 2 whistles and 2 First Aid Field Dressing sets. I informed ex-L/Sgt. Dayan, while he was still in the Force, and I ~~xxxxx~~ also noted the fact down in the Station Diary that the 2 sets of dressing had been used legitimately one on 16.4.39 when two settlers from Shimron were murdered near Mah'lul and the other during the encounter with an armed band near K.Hahorash on 4.7.39. Up to date This deficiency has not been made up.

Although I had to pay this month for missing whistles, I in actual fact received only six, I would therefore be obliged if the deficiencies could now be made up.

Subject :- Boots - Care of.

Boots issued to Jewish Settlement Police will be inspected periodically by Inspectors i/c Companies.

2. All boots which require repair will be forwarded to this office for repair at Central Prison Acre.

3. It is essential that boots forwarded to this office are securely tied in pairs, and that each boot bears the Number of the M.C.O. or Constable to whom it was issued.

4. You will impress on all personnel under your command that they will be held responsible that boots issued to them which require repairs are handed in without delay. Any man who fails to hand in his boots for repair before they have become unrepairable will be issued with a new pair on repayment.

Subject :- Clothing J.S.P. - slouch hats.

In order to prevent personnel of the Jewish settlement police being confused with members of the Australian Forces, the following distinctive patch will be worn on slouch hats by Jewish settlement police :-

Distinctive patch.

An equilateral triangle of police blue, sides of which are 3 cms. long; to be worn on the front of the hat beneath the hat badge. The lower edge of the triangle will touch the upper edge of the black leather hat band.

2. Indents will be made without delay on the Quartermaster for the required number of patches and the distinctive patch will be taken into wear as soon as possible.
